Half a Mile of Bables.

"Baby boulevard" is the popular name of the long stretch of broad cement walk which skirts the west edge of Lincoln Park, from North avenue to Center street, in Chicago. An observant man, walking south, passed twenty-six baby buggles and met thirty-two; in two buggies were howling twins. A Lincoln park policeman is authority for the statement that there are more babies trundled over this walk than over any other length of sidewalk in the city. He said in one day he checked up 124 fond fathers, doting mothers, nurse maids and small brothers and sisters shoving baby buggies, go-carts, wheeled chairs and perambulators over the cement slabs. "And that was only five hours during the whole day. That was on a Saturday. On Sundays they come in droves."
